

Valerie Gorin (Geneva, Switzerland)

Valerie Gorin graduated in contemporary history in 2004 at the University of Geneva, Switzerland, she started a PhD in media studies in 2007, on the representations of humanitarian crises in French and American magazines.

Currently, she works as a research assistant in the Department of Sociology in Geneva, and started numerous collaborations with international humanitarian institutions based in Geneva.

Her research interests range from war in the western media to the iconic memory of the 20th century, in a transdisciplinary perspective: history, sociology and media.