THE COURSE AND CONSEQUENCE OF THE LAST GREAT WAR OF ANTIQUITY

JAMES HOWARD-JOHNSTON

Corpus Christi College, Oxford

The paper will focus on the longest and most dramatic war between the Roman and Sasanian Empires in the seventh c. CE. Very recently the confrontation between these two super-powers has attracted a huge interest by a larger public due to spectacular archaeological findings at Ephesus. James Howard-Johnston will introduce into the events and the major repercussions, within the empires involved but also on its borderlands, Arabia being the most important one.
