

The Austrian Centre for Digital Humanities, a research department of the Austrian Academy of Sciences (Austria's leading non-university research facility), is seeking a

WEB DEVELOPER (F/M)
(part- or full time 50% - 100%)

You will join an internationally networked team, pursuing research on the border between ICT and humanities studies. Your work will be focused on the design and implementation of a full web application stack in a complex technological environment to be developed as part of the institute's engagement in a large H2020 infrastructure project.

The ideal candidate has a thorough knowledge of

- designing and implementing complex web applications
- web technologies (HTML, CSS, Javascript)
- server-side as well as client-side of web applications
- Javascript frameworks (NodeJS, Vue.js, d3.js, React)

as well as familiarity with

- scripting languages (mainly Python/django)
- XML technologies (XSLT, XPath, XQuery)
- information visualisation techniques (Geodata, Graph/Network Visualisation)
- Database management and development (SQL, XML-DBs, NoSQL)
- Semantic Web technologies (RDF, SKOS, LOD)

We invite applicants with

- experience in working in complex systems with a variety of technologies
- a high degree of creativity and the willingness to learn new emerging technologies
- hands-on experience in designing and implementing complex web applications
- excellent communication skills and
- the willingness to travel

An interest in humanities studies as well as experiences with particular humanities disciplines and/or the paradigms of digital humanities is regarded as an asset.

The employment will start in February 2019 and initially run until 30 June 2020. The contract can be extended.

We offer an annual gross salary of € 38.928,40 (based on a full time position) according to the collective agreement of the Austrian Academy of Sciences. Depending on qualification and experience, the salary is negotiable.

Applicants are invited to send their application documents (CV, letter of motivation, portfolio/reference projects) via e-mail to acdhd@oeaw.ac.at, no later than January 9, 2018.

